Dynamiq Yachts Unveil New 38.6-meter D4 Yacht

Dynamiq Yachts recently unveiled a new range of yachts officially in Monaco. The range are a trio which look pretty similar but are different lengths and overall the range is called the GTT -Gran Turismo TransAtlantic-. In this range three models will be on offer, the D4, the D4S and the D4L. 'S' suggests a more sport-like version while the 'L' they are calling a Limo variant. The D4 is what we will be looking at more closely. This particular variant is actually under construction right now and has been for a while -since 2014-. It is anticipated that the first hull in the D4 variant will be ready by Summer 2016 and will make her world debut at the 2016 Monaco Yacht Show (MYS).

The D4 is in build in Italy at the NCA shipyard in Carrara and is boasting Naval Architecture by Azure Naval Architects with interior by Bannenberg and Rowell. The exterior design is by the creative hands in the Dobroserdov Design Studio. The interior is expected to be contemporary in style to match the yacht's cutting edge external lines. All of the models in the GTT line will be classed RINA and feature Green Star Plus notations. The yachts can sleep up to guests in up to five or six cabins and around six crew members. The D4 is being constructed in full aluminium and should have a top speed of around 21-knots using twin MAN V12-1800 linked to two 4000 Fortjes POD drives with contra rotating propellers. Look out for the D4 in Summer 2016. Pricing for the D4 according to their website starts at 13.9 million Euros.
