BY GQ 24 JULY 15

From Steve McQueen's very own Porsche 911 to a safety belt for your dog, these are the 10 coolest things in the world this week.

Cristian Zuzunaga BD Barcelona Designs cabinet

While IKEA occasionally comes up trumps , it's probably best to leave your statement pieces to someone with more of an aesthetic focus. Like, say, Cristian Zuzunaga. Known for his pixelated designs, he's collaborated with BD Barcelona Designs to build this incredible 67cm tall 301cm x 51cm cabinet. The superficial tops, fronts and laterals are made of printed tempered 6mm glass and the legs are solid ash. And you don't have to put it together yourself.

Steve McQueen's Porsche 911 Turbo

The first Porsche 911 Turbo is already a very special thing. Developed at the 24 Hours of Le Mans, brought to market at the dawn of Thatcher's Britain and destroyed by every yuppie from Canary Wharf to Chipping Norton, they're one of the company's bluntest instruments. Exactly why Steve McQueen ordered this very car. This 1976 930 was actually the very last car he ordered, with Porsche-made custom touches like a switch to kill the taillights in case the authorities caught him on a midnight run up Mulholland Drive.

Icon A5 amphibious sport aircraft

Your concierge has hired your private island for a summer retreat , but how on earth are you going to get there? A business helicopter might do, but for a truly unique arrival try this luxury two-seat amphibious sports plane from USA-based Icon. Nervous flyer? It has a spin-resistant airframe and a complete airplane parachute.

Bert & May x Red Deer Little Hot box Barbecue

Part barbecue, part fire pit, all stylish. This 12kg 24cm x 24cm x 24cm cube will make a feature of the most modest roof terrace or garden and allow you to hone your skills on the grill .

● £250 via Bert & May

Liberty x Herschel Supply portfolio

Herschel Supply has collaborated with Liberty to update its classic Network portfolio. Featuring the brand's petal and bud print, the 22x28cm accessory is finished with leather trims and a top zip closure in brass.

● £35 via Liberty

Dynamiq Yachts GTT D4

Superyachts tend to combine poor fuel economy with low speed. Which is why Dynamiq developed a 38.6m boat that can hit 21 knots (that's fast for a ship this size) and travel more than 3,000 miles on one tank. The D4 is also fully customisable inside. Which you'd expect for the price...

● £9.9m via Dynamiq Yachts

Sonos PLAY:1 Wireless speaker

It's small enough to fit in a weekend bag but features two custom designed drivers with dedicated amplifiers, which gives it enough power to fill any room with sound. Easily controlled over Wi-Fi, the speaker is also limited to a run of 5,000, meaning there's a good chance your friends won't have one.

● £220 via Sonos

Vintage LED Edison bulb

Add some industrial chic to your home with vintage low-light Edison bulbs. They use a low-draw LED filament (available in either 2 or 4 watts – equivalent to standard 40W & 60W) to produce a warm white or amber light. Great for channelling you pad's inner speakeasy.

● £15 via Industville

Dedon Nestrest hanging chair

This aluminum-framed fibre-weave pod's perfect for your garden or roof terrace. Parisians Daniel Pouzet and Fred Frety, who have created everything from bathroom fixtures to superyachts, penned the Nestrest, which creates 378 cu ft of breathable space. Plenty of room for two.

● £8,900 via Dedon

Skoda safety belt for dogs

Your dog's one of the family, so keep him safe on the move. This specially-developed belt comes in four sizes - from S to XL - and clicks into a lead so you can take him for a walk straight from your car.

● From £50 via Skoda
